

Economic Conditions Of Mediaeval Cities Depicted Last Night

T. P. Howard Delivered
Paper at Meeting Of Historical Club

OFFICERS ELECTED
Gatehouse, Howard, And Harrington Elected To Office in Club

Election of officers, reception of new members, and the delivery of a paper by T. P. Howard on "A Comparison of Economic Urban Conditions in London and Florence During the Middle Ages," formed the basis of proceedings at the first meeting of the Historical Club. The meeting was held last evening at the home of W. Gatehouse, at 38 Edgemoor Road. W. Gatehouse was elected President, T. P. Howard, Vice-President, and Con Harrington, Secretary-Treasurer.

Howard opened his paper by delving into the history of both cities before the time he was considering. London was the leading city in England, whilst Florence, after the fall of the Roman Empire, had become established as an independent city. Both cities, although alike in broader details, nevertheless had outstanding differences.

Granted Commune 1191
In London, progress had demanded the replacement of "lordships" and "fellowships," by central organization. In 1191 the city had received the grant of a "commune," from King John; this, however, was mild when compared with that of Continental cities. Florence had obtained its commune in 1138, after the death of Matilda. By this commune the city was made autonomous in every respect.

At the start of the eleventh century, she had her old and new markets; already her merchants were trading with other countries. Had the city been a seaport, Florence would have received its grant of commune at a much earlier date.

Trade Becomes Important
In these days the power exercised by the rulers of Florence rested primarily on the ownership of land, official position, and family connections. Trade was only of secondary importance.

This aspect was soon changed, however, and trade superseded other factors and ranked in importance with industry. In London the nobles retired to their estates giving Trade and Industry free reign. In Florence such was not the case. To retire was to give up political rights to the Burghers and rather than do this the nobles adjusted themselves to the altered conditions. The nobles banded together in opposition and the strength and benefits accruing from organization of this sort were soon evident. Trade and industry benefited at home and abroad. The natural result was the formation of guilds.

Gild merchants had as their members the entire trading and industrial community. These soon grew in size and then separated into particular guilds—known as craft guilds. Rivalry between these two factions soon developed into a struggle for existence.

Craft Guilds Organized
In London this difficulty was done away with in that craft guilds were the first of their kind to spring up. New guilds found it impossible to obtain recognition. The old guilds recognized themselves and none else. In London the different types had organized into crafts; the masters and journeymen, etc. In Florence this was not possible—there the guilds were so powerful that each was like a state within a state. They had their own laws and

Prom Plans Proceed As Date Approaches

Orchestra To Be Selected
Soon For Junior Dance

As has been previously announced, the Junior Prom will be held this year on Thursday evening, December the first, and the scene of this social function will be the Windsor Hotel. The number of tickets is limited and it is the hope of the committee that most of them will be taken by Juniors, who will be given preference by the Prom executive until Monday, November 21st. The price of the tickets is $5.00.

Following the example set by previous Proms, no Freshmen will be allowed to attend, even if they should succeed in obtaining tickets from upperclassmen friends. The orchestra has not yet been decided upon, but the committee expect to make the choice by next Monday.

Co-Eds Enticed By Prizes In Societe Francaise Debates

The Societe Francaise is opening the season tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Common room of the Arts Building with a set of French debates. These debates will be very simple but not impromptu. The subjects will be posted on Thursday morning, leaving almost a whole day to prepare the speeches.

To make the debates more interesting, two prizes are to be awarded to the winning speakers. All those who wish to take part are asked to leave their names in the Common Room either at the R.V.C. or the Arts Building, where they will find the list of the subjects. As many as possible are urged to take part.

After the debates tea will be served to the entrants and the other guests. Everyone is requested to turn out, freshettes being especially invited.

Unemployed Relief Agencies Outlined

F. R. Clarke Director of Bureau Explains Attitude of Workless

FACE LOCAL TASK
Federal, Provincial and Municipal Governments Share
In Emergency Aid

Local efforts in the form of various agencies to cope with the unemployment situation and the attitude of white-collar and manual workers towards relief were explained last night by F. R. Clarke, director of the Emergency Relief Committee, to the Labor Club at Strathcona Hall.

"Improvement must come from the youth of the country" and so the speaker commended the interest taken by McGill students in their fellow beings, as evidenced by the University Labor Club. Unfortunately, however, a similar interest on the part of newspapers has led to the circulation of many false or exaggerated ideas concerning unemployment relief, to the embarrassment of the authorities.

Division of Subsidies
"The Federal Government has undertaken that no person, willing to work shall go hungry." Consequently the Federal, Provincial and Municipal governments have each undertaken to share in the task of distributing work, or more possibly, relief to the workless. Each local group conducts its relief in its own way, except for a responsibility to the higher authorities.

Montreal has an aldermanic unemployment committee, as well as an advisory relief board consisting of aldermen and representatives from the Protestant, English Catholic and Jewish Federation and the St. Vincent de Paul Society, which share in the relief work.

Various Centers
The Emergency Unemployment Committee, which Mr. Clarke directs, has several bureaux, shelters and distribution centres. It was explained how the family man, the homeless and the youthful transient each form difficult and separate problems and have to be treated in a different way. "The unemployed is a fluid group," (Continued on Page Four)

Students Organize "Widower's Union"

Kington, Ont. — Psychologists and brain specialists may be called into consultation to determine effective ways and means of combating the sudden craze which has spread over the Northwestern university campus. It was mentioned some time ago that a group of women students had formed an organization based on the "true to one man" doctrine. Each woman in the club wears a yellow ribbon around her neck signifying that her interest is payable in full to some man who is not attending Northwestern.

Them, not to be out-done by the "widows" have organized a "widowers' union" with a membership of men who refuse to date the local coeds. With pomp and ceremony they gathered on the shores of Lake Michigan and buried a casket containing all their love for Northwestern women.

S.C.M. To Consider Change In Emphasis At Meeting Tonight

Semi-Annual Meeting to be Held in Strathcona Hall
At 8 O'clock

PRESIDENT SPEAKS
Open Forum on "Place of
S.C.M. on Campus"
Will Occur

The dawn of a new era in the activities and emphasis of the Student Christian Movement in McGill will be heralded by the semi-annual meeting to be held at eight o'clock this evening in Strathcona Hall. It was pointed out at a recent meeting of the Cabinet that a spiritual awakening had been experienced by the executive as a whole with respect to the aim and dynamic of its work.

Lloyd Reynolds, the president, has accordingly issued an invitation to all who have any ideas or interest whatsoever in the subject to come out and take part in the open forum on "The place of the S. C. M. on the Campus." A significant feature in the evening's activities will be a statement on the part of the Cabinet in regard to a more vital program for the Movement than has hitherto been carried on. Those speaking will include Murray Brooks, Lloyd Reynolds, and Malcolm Ransom.

Constitutional Changes
Some amendments to the constitution will be brought up which it is thought will be of consequence. It has been suggested to officially change the present constitutional name of Student Christian Association to the one by which it is now becoming to be known, namely—the Student Christian Movement in McGill University. Thus the local unit will be identified with the general Movement in Canada and the world. Several other changes of some importance will also come under discussion during the first part of the meeting.

Criticism Welcomed
The Association as it is at present carrying on has been the object of much criticism both fair and otherwise. Thus it is urgently requested by those in charge that anyone who has feelings either way on the matter will take this opportunity of expressing their views during the meeting to-night. Members and adherents who have the Movement at heart will find much that will be of interest to them the executive feels.

The Cabinet will meet beforehand for supper at six-thirty o'clock followed by a business meeting at seven. A full attendance is requested.

Chemical Club Plans Excursion To Dawes

Dr. Hatcher Addressed Club
Yesterday at Second
Meeting of Year

Yesterday afternoon the Chemical Industry Club met for the second time this season. The main item on the program was a lecture given by Dr. Hatcher on the "Border line between Organic and Inorganic Chemistry."

In continuation of the plans outlined at the last meeting, a visit will be made two weeks hence to Dawes Brewery. All students interested are invited to go, with the members of the club, as they are also invited to attend the monthly meetings. Various speakers will address the club on these occasions.

At the meeting yesterday afternoon, it was decided, on account of the large attendance, to serve refreshments at the next session which will be held a month hence.

During the course of the year, the club will pay a number of visits to different industrial plants, and any student who is interested, is cordially invited to go.

Dental Undergrad Society Holds Banquet At Queen's

Upperclassmen and a sprinkling of freshmen wended their way last night to the Queen's Hotel where the Dental Undergraduates Society held its Annual Banquet. There were also present a number of Dental Faculty members who spoke. The chief speaker for the evening was Dr. Walsh, acting Dean of the Faculty of Dentistry. Aside from the speeches, the special meal and the jokes featured the banquet and added to the air of conviviality.

Arts '33 Complete Plans For Debates To Be Held Soon

Class debating will soon be in full swing in Arts '33. The list which is at present posted in the reading room of the Arts Building contains the names of most of the prominent debaters in the class already including two Talbot-Papineau Cup holders. All other seniors whether they have debated before or not are invited to sign the list and come out.

As the winners of the tourney are to be the Seniors' Representative in the coming Interclass debates under the auspices of the Arts Undergrad. Society all entries should be made immediately in order that the winners may be determined in time.

This year instead of allowing the debaters to choose their own partners, teams will be arranged by drawing lots.

Butler Will Receive Final Military Rites

Funeral of Sergeant-Major

And Military Cross

The funeral service of Sergeant-Major Frank Butler, M.C., D.C.M. will take place this afternoon at 3 p.m. at the Church of St. Andrew and St. Paul, Sherbrooke St. West. From there it will proceed to the Field of Honor at Pointe Claire, where burial will take place.

The pall-bearers will be personal friends of the deceased, who served overseas as N.G.O.'s with him and under him. The McGill Contingent (148 Battalion C.E.F.) C. O. T. C. of Canada will provide the firing party. This will be composed of a Sergeant, a Corporal and twelve Cadets. At the Pointe Claire cemetery a piper will play a lament. The pipers and drummers will be supplied by the Black Watch (Royal Highlanders) of Canada.

Rev. George Donald Officiates

Among those who will participate at the ceremony are: detachments from the Black Watch, the Black Watch Association, the Imperial comrades, Branch of the Canadian Legion and the Army and Navy Veterans Association. The C.O.T.C. buglers will sound the Last Post. Rev. George H. Donald, D.D., rector of St. Andrew and St. Paul will take the funeral service at the Church.

Before the war, Sergt.-Major Butler served in the Cold-Stream Guards, but at the outbreak of the war, he entered the 17th Battalion, Nova Scotia Highlanders. He was severely wounded at the battle of the Somme while serving in the Royal Highlanders. He received the D. C. M. and the bar for bravery under fire. At Cambrai Sergt.-Major Butler distinguished himself to a greater extent. When all his superiors were killed or wounded, he took command of the

Stellar Thought Influenced Classical Poets And Thinkers

Dr. A. Vibert Douglas Addressed Alumnae Society of R.V.C. Last Night

MANY SLIDES SHOWN
Many Ancient Theories of Astronomy And Their Effects Described

The influence of astronomical thought on ancient philosophy and the literature of Homer, Dante and Milton formed the keynote of the address by Dr. Douglas on "Astronomy in Education" at the meeting of the Alumnae Society of R.V.C. held last night in the Common Room of the Royal Victoria College. The speaker was introduced by the president of the Society, Mrs. Gordon Sproule.

At the outset, the speaker mentioned the fact that there is very little known on the subject of astronomy in education inasmuch as this subject is not taught in Canadian colleges or high schools to the ordinary student. In McGill, Astronomy is available only to those honor students in mathematics in the second and fourth years and those taking their Master's or Doctor's degree in physics.

Theory of Quiltescence
Astronomy, the speaker wished to stress, was closely inter-related with many other branches of knowledge. It has played an important part in the history of human thought, especially in its influence felt in philosophy and religion. Examples of its effect on the former are detected in the Greek theory of the "quintessence," of which earth, fire, water and air constitute the changeable substances, whereas the fifth substance, known as the quintessence, was believed to be unchangeable.

Slides were then shown of the homeric universe which represented the idea that the sun was carried around in a boat on a river once a day. This theory was also prevalent among the ancient Egyptians. Just until the year 1450 the main theory among the leading astronomers was that the earth was the center of the universe and that pure air filled all space.

Influence of Astronomy
The influence of astronomy on literature may best be found in Dante's "Divine Comedy" where Ptolemy's Theory concerning the sphere of seven planets leading from the earth to the celestial obode, Milton was affected to a great extent by Galileo whom he met personally in Italy, and expressed that influence in his "Paradise Lost." Slides were then shown on eclipses, showing the nebula and the path of the eclipse on the earth. The vote of thanks was proposed by Miss Georgia Hunter.

Professor Noad To Lecture On Doughty

His Masterpiece "Arabia Deserta" Influences Later Literature

Tomorrow evening at 8:15 in Tudor Hall Professor Noad will lecture on "Charles Doughty." This lecture will be the second in a series given by Professor Noad and Professor Files to take place during November, December and January. Season tickets for the entire group have been priced at three dollars, while individual tickets for single lectures may be secured for 40 cents. A special rate of 25 cents will be granted to students.

Professor Noad will endeavour to point out the importance of the influence of Charles Doughty upon travel literature. His most famous book "Arabia Deserta" has had a great influence upon later exploratory and adventure stories such as Lawrence's "Revolts in the Desert," and also Bertrand Thomas' "Arabia Felix."

Besides being noted as a travel writer he has also gained considerable renown as a poet. Professor Noad will lay particular stress on Doughty's poem "Dawn in Britain" which is very symbolic of his work. Charles Doughty is sometimes spoken of as a "neglected genius." For a long time his work was not fully appreciated but he is being recognized as a great contributor to "Modern Literature."

MINING AND METALLURGICAL SOCIETY

The annual dinner is to take place on the 26th of this month. As it is necessary to obtain the names of those intending to be present as soon as possible they are requested to get in touch with the secretary immediately. Price two dollars. Beer included.

Important Amendments To Be Voted On Today

Meeting of Students' Society at Ballroom in Union at 5 O'clock — Financial Report to be Presented — Amendments Proposed by Alastair Watt — Call For Abolition of all General Meetings Except on Special Occasions, And Extension of Time For Nominations of President of The Society, When Only One Nominee is Put Forward.

IMPORTANT issues face the Students' Society this afternoon at five o'clock when it assembles in the Ballroom of the Union. Several vital amendments are being brought up by Alastair Watt, the Law representative to the executive of the Society, which will change the constitution considerably, if passed.

The most vital amendment which is to be presented, is the proposal that all semi-annual and annual meetings are to be abolished, and that a meeting is only to be called on special occasions. This motion has been obviously inspired by the lack of student interest in the general meetings in the past.

Necessary Quorum
The necessary quorum is a hundred students. Both men and women are eligible to make up this quorum. Dean Nesbitt, President of the Students' Society, emphasized how important it was for every student to make an effort to be present in order that the required number be obtained.

The amendments which Alastair Watt has proposed and which were seconded by Hugh Seybold, appeared in the Daily some weeks ago. The main amendment calls for the elimination of all regular general meetings. If there be only one person nominated for the post of President of the Society, the date for closing of nominations shall be extended 48 hours, and notice thereof published in the McGill Daily.

Sub-amendment Motion
The problem of sub-amendments has been bothering the Society for some time past, due to the fact that all amendments under the present constitution have to be printed in the Daily two weeks before the General Meeting. The proposed amendment says that "Sub-amendments shall be carried by a two-thirds majority of those present at any general meeting of the Society, provided one week's notice is given and published in the McGill Daily. If this notice is not given the sub-amendment may be made from the floor at the meeting, in which case a majority of three-quarters of the members present shall be necessary for its adoption."

Provision has been made for the calling of a general meeting on important problems by the giving of three days notice by the President or on the written request of 25 members of the Society. All sections of the present constitution which would clash with these new amendments are being moved to be deleted by the students proposing the changes.

Rhodes Scholarship Applications Ended
23 McGill Students Apply as Candidates
AWARD FELLOWSHIP
Subjects Announced For Royal Bank Scholarships

The last date for application for the Rhodes Scholarships is now passed with 23 candidates having entered, and all student scholars may now look forward to the Royal Society Fellowships for which applications will be accepted until the first of February, 1933. In addition the governing body of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, invite entries for a Research Studentship which will be awarded in July 1933. Grants in aid of research in the Social Sciences will be made by the Social Science Research Council and the closing date for these requests will be February the first, 1933.

Requirements
A Rhodes Scholarship is tenable at the University of Oxford and may be held for three years. Since, however, the majority of Rhodes Scholars obtain standing which enable them to take a degree in two years, appointments are made for two years in the first instance, and a Rhodes Scholar who may wish to remain for a third year must present a definite plan of study for that period, satisfactory to his College and to the Rhodes Trustees. As the basis of selection four groups of qualities are needed. The student must have scholarly attainments, qualities of manhood, an exhibition of moral force of character, and an interest in outdoor sports.

The Royal Bank of Canada will grant a $1,000 Fellowship or a cash prize of $250 to the graduate or undergraduate student in Economics of a Canadian University who writes the best paper not exceeding 3,000 words in length on any one of certain specified subjects during the academic year of 1932-33. The subjects for the 1932-33 fellowships will be as follows:

1. The possibilities of a managed sterling currency as an international medium of exchange.
2. Contemporary Empire Trade Policy with an analysis of the results of the British Empire Economic Conference.
3. Aviation in Canada.
4. Analysis of the spread between

Col. Bovey Guest of Honor
At Iso Club Celebration

On Saturday evening, Dec. 3, the annual Iso Club Ball will be held in the Rose Room of the Windsor Hotel. Col. and Mrs. Bovey will be present as guests of honour, and Mayor and Mrs. Beaulieu of Outremont will preside. It has been arranged to have a cabaret during the supper, the piano being played by Willie Zekstein. Those who wish to attend may obtain information at H.A. 4394. The proceeds of the Ball are to be given to Charity.

House Of Commons Club To Meet Soon

Mary Hill And Margaret
Grant Will Read Papers
On Friday

The House of Commons Club will hold its second meeting for the year on Friday, November 19th, in the Reading Room of the R. V. C. at 8:30 o'clock. Two papers will be read, the first by Mary Hill, a graduate at the university, whose subject will be "Modern English Women Writers." The subject of the second paper is "Virginia Woolf" and it will be read by the president of the club, Margaret Grant.

The House of Commons Club is an organization of women students at McGill, who meet for the purpose of discussing a wide variety of subjects in which they are interested. The meetings are held once a month in the R. V. C. and are open to all women students.

Society To Conduct Upperclass Debates

Delta Sigma Society Stages
Upper Year Competition

Lists for the Upper classwomen Debates have already been posted to the R. V. C. and in the Common Room of the Arts Building. Those in the upper years who are interested in debating are invited to sign as quickly as possible since the debating teams will be drawn by lot as soon as the Fresh Debates now in progress are completed, when the subjects will be announced. The Debates will be held in R. V. C. Any particulars may be obtained from Alice Johansson, West 4019.

The executive feels that the experience gained from these debates is unlimited and is essential to those in this line of activity. The debates will be conducted in a series of elimination contests and the winners of these will compete with higher teams.

Perhaps The Last—

TODAY the Student's Society will meet to consider radical changes in its constitution, and in order that these changes may be considered it is necessary that at least one hundred students attend. To ask less than five percent of the undergraduates to give up one hour of their time for such a cause may seem a presumption, but the impertinence of the request is lessened when we regard the nature of the amendments that are proposed.

If the amendments are carried today, then the annual and semi-annual meetings of the Society will be abolished, and students will be released from the embarrassment of attending them in future. This is obviously an immense advantage. Those who felt a trifle ashamed at staying away from these meetings will henceforth, with a clear conscience, be able to forget all about the Society.

This greater peace of mind will not be purchased at any disadvantage to the efficiency of the Society. The Executive Council is capable of carrying on the general business, and there will still be a clause in the constitution allowing for a meeting of the whole Society if twenty-five of its members so desire. Thus any possibility of autocracy will be averted, and a cumbersome and unnecessary procedure will irk us no more.

Dignity Vs. Ballyhoo

ONE cannot help contrasting the fuss and ballyhoo attendant upon the recent American elections with the dignity of our elections here at McGill. Of course some people will urge that it is not fair to compare a nation-wide election to a college election, but, from what we have heard, American college elections yield nothing to their federal elections in blatancy or in making much ado about nothing.

We have often bemoaned student apathy at McGill and the fact that our elections scarcely cause a stir of interest. Is it not better that we should not get excited when there is nothing to get excited about, than that we should work ourselves into a frenzy over nothing at all? We never have an election issue. Two or more men, equally capable and well-known, are nominated. They think alike on all major points, therefore there is no platform. It does not matter much which one is elected, so everyone keeps cool and refuses to rush to cast his vote. We feel sure that if there were a major issue, with candidates taking opposite sides, we would have no cause to complain of student apathy. Meanwhile, why worry?

In the United States, however, the situation is comical. There they always ballyhoo. The candidates dare not state all their opinions ahead of time for fear of antagonizing certain classes of voters. They content themselves by drawing up platforms which mean nothing, and withhold their opinions on the really important matters till after the elections. They do not attempt to state their policies in a frank straightforward manner, but are content to indulge in petty personalities and quibbling over matters of minor import.

The campaign drags on through long weeks of dull speeches which say nothing and only help to confuse the public. Famous figures in sport go campaigning for their political party. They tell the voters something like this "I am a professional prize-fighter, and I am going to vote for so and so, therefore you should, for of course I know what is best for the country." And the public go to hear people like this and believe everything they say.

We can thank our lucky stars that we have apathy at McGill if it saves us from this. Here the candidates are quietly nominated; no one has to listen to dull, ignorant speeches; everyone can find all they want to know about the candidates from their past records. Voting can take place in a quiet, dignified manner—the voters selecting the best candidate without any confusion due to red herrings having been drawn across the trail, and without any inconvenience to those who refuse to become enthusiastic about nothing.

NOTES AND NOTES

DOWN SOUTH, in a small American town, a group of enthusiasts established a "Little Theatre." Its success was immediate, and within a comparatively short while it grew out of its knee pants into the full-dress suit of professionalism. The direct reason was that the town newspaper critics from the start had reviewed its offerings, taking the professional standpoint, and in order to keep to what appeared to be expected of them, the director and his crew spent more and more time and effort upon the productions until the virtual truth of professionalism was outwardly admitted.

This is a true tale and is repeated here to show that newspaper criticism, sometimes regarded solely as the means whereby the editor in charge gets passes to all the shows, can be really effective if both given and taken in the proper spirit. To say that Montreal knows little of this spirit is to utter a platitude; the best proof of this is the fact that about 80 per cent of the concert efforts by local artists have resulted in very boring afternoons or evenings, recitals characterized by gross laxity in technique, and downright boorishness where interpretations of any music more complicated than a Strauss waltz have been demanded.

The reason for this state of affairs is simply a lack of criticism. When every audience leaving every concert rhapsodizes, "Wasn't it grand!" "I've never heard such volume!" "real genius, my dear!" "I can't remember when I enjoyed myself better!" and when the sum total of the news criticism panders to a false sense of gentility and says "....'s concert offered some interesting music that was well appreciated," then it is obvious that the artists will acquire a distorted idea of their own value and importance, and will continue to slush along in their unchanging degraded level.

A student newspaper is unfortunately in no position to create very much impression outside its own circle. The Player's Club might keep in mind the Daily's anxiety for bling phrases, and try to avoid some of the incongruities that have already called these forth, the Red and White Review might swear to get sufficient dress rehearsals to avoid the Daily referring to their first performance with opprobrious terms, but the Lorry Menders' Wind Septet would not even read a Daily criticism if it were sent to them.

The duty rests with the larger newspapers, all of which have capable men on their staffs. For the last year or so, the only severe censure of an artist has been that of Mary Wigman, that "fantastic dancer, by the misguided S. Morgan-Powell, and, of course, this was undeserved. Edel of the Herald—and this paper should be taken more seriously—Bell, Powell and Legate of the Star, and Archer of the Gazette all have sufficient experience and knowledge of their particular branches to be authoritative in their criticisms, but with the exception of the first who has still his way to fashion, they have exercised their prerogatives so rarely as almost to have robbed themselves of them.

A good criticism, to be effective, must be published. The artist must feel that knowledge of his faults is public property, and that he is duty-bound to correct them if he is to appear again on the platform. This is psychology, and not music nor dramatics. The critic himself is not to be regarded as a teacher, but rather as a judge of the taste and efficiency with which the number was presented and the manner in which governing conditions allowed it to be received. He must be regarded as the standard of appreciation, which his readers, and therefore the audiences must strive to attain, and if he is sincere in his work, no one in the community will be able to surpass him. Critics are bound to make mistakes, but these are rare, and occur usually when they listen to a group whose aims are not familiar to them. A case in point is a choral society whose prime purpose is to study songs. It gives an annual concert in order to raise the funds necessary to carry it on, and if the results then are not of the best, it is because the society does not specialize in acquiring a concert polish, regarding this as of less importance than the understanding of the music they sing.

The remedy for the Montreal case is simple. A guest critic of reputable standing should be imported for a month or two during the height of the season, and be given free reign. (Cf. George Jean Nathan in London). The fresh impetus that would be given to this art of criticism, aside from anything else, would then perhaps make some of our smug local entertainers realize that the appearance of quantity upon the platform is alone insufficient but must be accompanied by quality. When Montreal is famous for having the best this or the finest that in Canada, it will have the American continent to surpass, after which Europe, then the world, and then itself.

The last may appear somewhat idealistic, and certainly criticism that is compiled between the 11:00 o'clock finish of a concert and the one o'clock deadline for the news copy will have a hard time helping to this end, but the truth is still unchanged and that is that Montreal needs an artistic re-awakening.

THE following about major musical events on the air may prove interesting. A short time ago Columbia made the announcement that Leopold Stokowski would conduct the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra in a series of 11 Friday afternoon concerts (2.30 to 4.00 p.m. EST), to be broadcast during the fall and winter over that network. Now comes more good news. This symphonic organization is to be presented in an additional series of five Saturday evening broadcasts, from 8.15 to 10.00 p.m., EST. These will be full-length broadcasts of the orchestra's regular concerts at the Philadelphia Academy of Music. At intermission time a prominent critic, probably the New York World-Telegram's Pitts Sanborn, who fulfills that function for the Friday afternoon broadcasts, will microphone critical comment and program notes. The concerts will be broadcast on November 26, December 17, January 7, March 18, and April 1. The sponsor will be Philco. Philadelphia will be the origination point for still another worthy series of symphonic broadcasts. These will be a series of Tuesday afternoon broadcasts by the symphony orchestra of the Curtis Institute of Music, with soloists chosen from among its students and faculty. The orchestra numbers more than 100 members, many of them from among Philadelphia's foremost musicians. The concerts will be aired via WABC-Columbia from 4.15 to 5.00 p.m. EST, every Tuesday.

Correspondence

Editor,
McGill Daily.

Sir:—
At present, the Senior students are required to have their photographs taken for the Annual. The price for this pleasure is $2.75, which must be paid at the sitting. To many students trying to make both ends meet, this sum can be raised only with difficulty. This difficulty can be lightened if the Seniors so desire, by allowing the amount payable to be deducted from the students' caution money at the end of the year, as is done with the Annual.

Surely, the photographer would accept this arrangement rather than lose the patronage of those unfortunates who are unable to raise the required sum.

Thanking you for your space, I remain,
Yours truly,
JOHN D.

The Editor,
McGill Daily.

Sir:—
If the Daily were to receive one half of the criticism which its staff has seen fit to heap upon the various other organizations of the Campus that worthy oracle would have long since ceased to exist. I refer in particular to the shameful criticism of the Player's Club production.

If the one paper which should support college activities chooses to censor, then only can they hope to thrive. If the Daily lent its support to the efforts of the Player's Club they would be more enthusiastically received by the students, which would result in the Club being able to satisfy the critical idealism of morons as well as the intelligentsia.

Sincerely,
"JOHN CHARLES."

772 Sherbrooke St. W., November 15.

The Editor,
McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:—
Few campus organizations are so frequently and variously criticized as the Student Christian Movement; it is also true that few of the adherents of this Movement can, when questioned by others, give valid reasons for its continued existence. Two things seem to be desirable: firstly, that those who profess an interest in the organization should be able to give to others clear and frank reasons for such interest; secondly, that critics of the Movement should have an opportunity to present their views in person to the Executive and other interested persons.

The Executive have accordingly arranged that the semi-annual meeting of the Movement, to be held this evening at 8 o'clock in Strathcona Hall, should take the form of an open forum discussion of the place of the S.C.M. (or its lack of place) on the campus. We are anxious that all points of view should be represented at this meeting and we extend a cordial invitation to students of all shades of opinion—fraternity and sorority men and women, students of philosophy or science, theological students and members of other religious groups on the campus. Your frank opinions will be welcomed and respected and there will be no beating around the bush if I, as chairman, can prevent it.

Cordially yours,
LLOYD G. REYNOLDS,
President, S.C.M.

November 14th, 1932.

The Editor,
McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:—
The Students handbook for this year contained as preface a message from the President of the Council, the universal applicability of which was not evident to me until I read with amusement the review of the Players' Club "Escape" in yesterday's Daily. If, in this phenomenal piece of atrocious English and absence of ideas, the "critic" did not lose his sense of proportion, and allow one face of the show to fill the whole screen; then common-sense is enthroned securely in the mind of the greatest lunatics.

It is difficult, sir, to criticize with absolute impartiality the work of one's friends, so that perhaps your critic will pardon the moderation of this letter; and those numerous people whom his review exasperated will forgive my not deprecating it as unreservedly as they might themselves. I must say in extenuation of his faults that he has the excuse of youth, which finds nothing as intoxicating as printers' ink, and counts inexperience as carte-blanche for every enormity. But even so....

To the greater number of those who saw the play it appeared if not fine, at least a pleasing and well made effort at something worth-while. None of them will deny that the setting was scarcely up to the usual standard, but it was not the outrage against decency that one would think from this review. A saner opinion is surely that what might have been a first-class production was lessened in value by the defects of scenery and the slowness of the stage crew.

As far as "T. F.'s English goes I might point out that such expressions as "kept her laurels," "getting down" to actors, are not an asset to any critic's vocabulary. Down to brass tacks, yes; but to actors—God forbid. I think T. F. would do better to leave them out of his scheme of things altogether for the time; or at least try to rise to their level.

One last quibble, sir, if you have the space to waste. Let T. F. spend a fortnight or so at work on a pet creation (even one of his reviews will do) and let him see his child strangled by the inhuman hands of an ignoramus, as he has "strangled" the scenery of "Escape." As indeed I have tried to strafe his critique.

Then, and then alone I should enjoy hearing the opinions of the wiser and the sadder man, which he would become.

Yours sincerely,
K. K. pp. Dr. Strabismus, of Utrecht.

Schools Should Employ Movies

Madison, Wis. — Schools which fail to use classroom films are missing a practical means of making lessons "stick," the bureau of visual instruction advised in a message in its October issue of "Visual Aids." The bureau is a unit of the University of Wisconsin extension division. Its director is J. E. Hansen, formerly a Wisconsin school superintendent.

Mr. Hansen writes that the Eastman experiment and one at Yale proved beyond doubt that educational films, carefully planned and properly used, are a valuable aid to the learning process.

Interest Is Enhanced

"Many other less notable but equally thorough and fair tests have been made," he said, "all testifying to the value of films and other visual aids not only as a means of furnishing concrete experiences so vital in children's learning but as a means of creating interest in school work. Wisconsin schoolmen and schoolwomen cannot afford to ignore findings such as these. Every school in the state should at least be studying the possibilities of films and still pictures with a view to a more or less complete use later."

The department has a wealth of film material in general science, biology, health, physiology, anatomy, the world's geography, history, citizenship, safety, applied arts, physics, industries, astronomy, and transportation.

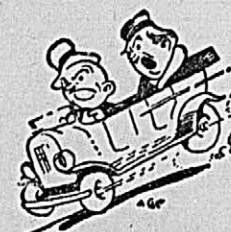

A new film, "Free Schools, the hope of Democracy," has been added for rental to schools and civic groups. It shows the value received for the taxpayer's dollar for the support of schools, including the returns given from what some regard as frills in school curricula.

The bureau offers to put on sound motion picture programs for city teachers' associations, parent-teacher groups, training schools, teacher colleges, sections of the Wisconsin Teachers' association, and other groups. Subjects available include "The Teaching of Reading," Gates; "Dynamic Learning," Kilpatrick; "The Elementary Teacher as a Guide," Bode; "Creative Approach to Education," Mearns, and "Guidance in Public Schools," Allen.

Many thousand lantern slides are made annually by the visual instruction bureau for use in the university class rooms, the publication says. Several teaching demonstrations will be given before the visual instruction section of the Wisconsin Teachers' convention at Milwaukee, early in November.

Some day the people of the United States will understand that professional reform organizations are in the business of "reforming the universe for purely personal gratification, as merely another means of 'earning' a living. The paid reformer has no more genuine regard for the public's needs or desires than the snake creature who palms off "quack" medicines as sure-thing cures for human ailments.

Records Shattered In Co-Ed Swimming Meet

Sheila Ritchie And Margaret Hale Break Former Marks

M.S.P.E. '34 Takes Class Title By Wide Margin

SHEILA Ritchie yesterday lowered the record for the 25 yard crawl by one and two-fifths seconds at the second annual M.V.S.A.A. aquatic meet at the K. of C. pool. Margaret Hale, Arts '36, splashed her way to victory in the 25 yard racing back-stroke in 18.4, nearly a second faster than last year's time. There were nearly twice as many entrants this year as last.

Class honours go to M. S. P. E. '34 for piling up the highest total — 38 points. With only 12 points to their credit, Arts freshettes swam their way to second place, followed closely by the senior physical-ed mermaids. The class relay was also won by M.S.P.E. '34, represented by Joyce Lewis, Dot Lee, Sheila Ritchie and Phyllis Jackson.

Sheila Ritchie Stars
Sheila Ritchie, M.S.P.E. '34, who already holds many provincial and Dominion records, upheld her laurels when she smashed one record and led the way in two other events, amassing nineteen points in all. Since this is the first year that a 100 yard free style race has been a scheduled event there was no record to be broken, but her mark will, no doubt, stand for some time to come. She will be presented with a cup and a large 'M'. Phyllis Jackson holds the second highest individual aggregate — 10 points. Margaret Hale was third.

The humorous side of the meet came to light in the form of a tire race, originally intended for beginners, but in which four senior physical-ed's kicked through 25 yards of water with tires wrapped about their waists. The over-and-under rope obstacle race proved the cause of many entanglements.

There was an unusually large number of entrants in the 25 yard side stroke event for form, in which Betty Lysons and Phyllis Jackson tied for first place.

Diving Well Done
Last, but not least, on the program came the diving. Sheila Ritchie, Joyce Lewis and Maxine Monroe dove their way to first, second and third places respectively, by back somersaults, running swans and jack-knife dives. Old favorites like Isabel Dawson and Gwen Nicholson showed their form to be up to the mark in some neat standing and running plain and swan dives.

- Events:
1.—25 yd. Crawl:—(1) Sheila Ritchie, (2) Joyce Lewis, (3) Isabel Dawson.
2.—25 yd. Tire Race:—(1) Joy Tucker, (2) Beryl French, (3) Bunty Frazer.
3.—100 yd. Free Style:—(1) Sheila Ritchie, (2) Margaret Hale, (3) Isabel Dawson.
4.—25 yd. Side Stroke (style):—(1) Betty Lysons and Phyllis Jackson (tied), (2) Dot Walker.
5.—Obstacle Race:—(1) Phyllis Jackson, (2) Isabel Dawson, (3) Bunty Frazer.
6.—25 yd. Back Stroke (racing):—(1) Margaret Hale, (2) Joyce Lewis, (3) Ruth Hope.
7.—Diving:—(1) Sheila Ritchie, (2) Joyce Lewis, (3) Maxine Monroe.
8.—Class Relay:—(1) M.S.P.E. '34.
Judges of Events:—Miss J. Herriot, Miss Z. Black, Miss E. Wain.
Timers and Starters:—R. Hope, B. Howe, D. Gentry, R. Paterson.

Junior Hockey
Will the following please turn out at the Forum at 1:30 p.m. today:—Moore, Morse, Wigle, Patton, Yancey, J. Yancey, Grier, Tennant, Elwood, Westman, Woo, Frew, Duff, McDuff, Findlay, Smith, Moise, Pacaud, and any others who have not yet been out. Bring your own equipment.

survivors, and for his remarkable leadership, received the Military Cross.

Killed Sunday
On returning to Canada after the War, he enlisted in the Militia and served as Sergt.-Major in the McGill Corps. Sergt.-Major Butler was killed in an accident early Sunday morning, Nov. 13. He was crossing Decarie Boulevard when he was struck by a passing automobile, which knocked him unconscious. Dr. G. Lafreniere was called and after examining the body of Butler, pronounced him dead.

His untimely death was a great shock to his many friends at the University and also to his friends in the business world.

Senior Hockey
Training table will be held in the Union Grill Room at 4.45 p.m. today for the following men:—McHugh, Melkjohn, Painter, Farquharson, McGill, G. Crutchfield, Farmer, Robertson, Shaughnessy.

McGill Team Plays Columbus In First Game Of Twin Bill

Tonight's Hockey Match Is Not Home Game

CANADIENS VS. VICS

TONIGHT'S Senior Group double-header which commences at eight o'clock will provide the fans with two high class contests. In the curtain-raiser, McGill are billed to meet "Doc" McMahon's green-and-white-clad Columbus puck-chasers. This match will be followed by a clash between Victorias and Canadiens. The first game will start at 8.00 p.m. and the second at 9.30.

Columbus suffered a 5-1 defeat at the hands of the Royals last Wednesday night in their first start in senior company in two years. However a week's work should serve to smooth out the rough spots and they are sure to prove dangerous tonight. Bobby Bell will dress only nine men for the tilt, reserving the remaining places for several members of the football team who have just finished gridiron activities for the season and have not been able to take the ice as yet. Nels Crutchfield is still on the injured list and will have to stay on the sidelines for another game at least.

Shaughnessy To Play
Frank Shaughnessy, Jr., has been re-instated by the Faculty and will provide the relief for Melkjohn and Painter who will start on the red defence. Holly McHugh will guard the twine. Hugh Farquharson is slated for centre ice position and will be flanked by Gordie Crutchfield and Jack McGill. This trio has been performing well in practice and can be counted on to keep the opposing rear-guard on the jump.

Kenny Farmer and Tommy Robertson have a big job on their hands. Only two relief forwards are being carried for this game and both will

SPORT TALKIE

By The Sports Editor

CONGRATULATIONS are in order to the Varsity senior football twelve. Last year the blue team made a dismal showing but new blood injected into the machine has worked wonders and Saturday's win over Queen's shows that the Varsity squad is indeed a mighty one. With two weeks rest before they are called upon to meet the winner of the Sarnia-Hamilton play-off the Toronto boys should be at top form. Then all arguments over the superiority of intercollegiate and "practical" football will be definitely settled. The Tigers are favored to defeat the Imperials and should this be the case the Varsity-Tigers battle should be the best possible criterion to judge that superiority.

VARITY SET FOR FINALS
We regret that the Sports Editor of the Varsity has seen fit to throw slurs upon the motives of the McGill players in the game here against Varsity. He would have us believe that the Redmen's main intention was to get both Sinclair and Arnpur out of the game as soon as possible. We do not believe that because a man is injured he has any right to walk through an opposing team without a hand being laid upon him, but no one of fair and sane mind would suggest that Sinclair was put out of the game with malicious forethought. No one in sane mind would state that it was other than an accident. Teams from McGill have always had a name for true sportsmanship and it ill behooves our Varsity friends to speak thus of a team which even in defeat has the admiration of all true lovers of sport.

WHY THE STONE-THROWING?
Looking forward to next year it would seem that Western is going to have the hardest task ahead of it. No less than thirteen of the Mustang's stars are due to graduate this spring, and among these men are some whose names will be remembered long by the football fans of the Forest City. But, be this as it may, next year Joe Breen can be counted on to have a fighting team prepared to go far in preserving the enviable reputation that the purple and white has made in only four seasons senior competition. Of the four teams, McGill will be perhaps the least hit by graduation. With several coming stars in their freshman year we can only say—"Wait till next season."

WESTERN HARD HIT
The senior hockeyists go into action again tonight with prospects considerably brighter than at the same time last week. Coach Bell announced that Shaughnessy will be definitely on the lineup. The week's practice has worked wonders with the combination and team play and it will be a smooth working squad that will greet Doc McMahon's Greenhirts. Melkjohn, the former Wisconsin star is shaping up nicely. He was born on the other side of the border and while it is a common occurrence to find Canadians playing on American college teams it is somewhat of a novelty to find an American-born hockeyist on a Canadian college team.

HOCKEY PROSPECTS GOOD
The junior ice squad held the first practice of the year last evening at the Forum and Coach Bell was greeted with a turnout of no less than 26 men. This year's crop of freshmen evidently think they know something about the ice game. There is an added attraction playing on the junior squad this year as the games will be played on Monday evenings at the Forum. This will no doubt give junior hockey quite a boost and McGillmen should turn out "en masse" to encourage these budding stars.

JUNIORS PREPARE FOR FRAY
Today sees the first of the group forming the B. W. & F. Club back in regular training quarters in the Field House. The rugby season forces this branch of sport to vacate the Field House and seek refuge in the High School Gym. Here facilities are limited and the men have no lockers which entails taking equipment home every night. Such conditions do not make training an easy matter. From the very first both coaches and contestants are handicapped, but all are determined to bring the crown back to McGill.

BOXING MEETS
The boxers will start their regular weekly eliminations and practice bouts on Saturday. These tournaments give newcomers and veterans an excellent opportunity of gaining valuable experience in actual competition. This year the men are in first class shape as Coach Bert Light has been putting them through a strenuous P. T. course. In fact many who have no aspirations whatsoever in the mit game have been taking advantage of this P. T. to keep in condition. We hope that many freshmen will take the excellent opportunity offered and compete in the Saturday meets.

Attention Arts '34
There will be a class basketball practice in the Montreal High School Girls' gym today at 6.15 p.m. All interested are asked to turn out. It is imperative that all of last year's players be on hand. Manion, Mitchell, Tait, Horwitz, Nolan, Goldenberg, Silver, and Tucker please take note.

are holding please do so today at 5.00 p.m.
SOCCER
The photo for the "Annual" will be taken at 1.00 p.m. sharp on Saturday. All first-team men and substitutes are requested to be on hand at Hay Finlay's office. All men who still have equipment out must bring it with them on Saturday, otherwise it will be charged against them. All men who still have equipment at the Field House must empty their lockers and remove the locks as soon as possible. Failure to do this will entail the necessity of forcing the locks.

BOXING
Practice will be held at the Field House on Thursday at 5.00 p.m. Lockers will be provided.
INTERCLASS BASKETBALL
A meeting of Class Basketball representatives will be held in the Reading Room of the Union at 5.00 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 17. Every class intending to enter the Interclass League should have a representative in attendance. Managers may secure practice hours now from Mr. Van Wagner, Dept. of Physical Education.

SENIOR HOCKEY
The Senior Team will practice Thursday from 1.30-2.30 p.m., and on Friday from 5.00-6.00 p.m.

WRESTLING
There will be a practice today at the Field House at 5.00 p.m.

Coach Shaughnessy Will Be Referee In Play-Off Game

INTEREST in tomorrow's Interfaculty Rugby championship has been further heightened by the fact that Coach Shaughnessy has consented to act in the capacity of referee-in-chief. The Arts squad is taking no chances with the cagey Law team and fearing that they might be led into a trap have fallen back on their constitutional rights, seeking the services of no less an authority than the eminent McGill mentor.

Both teams are keeping strict training for the big event and will take the field in good shape. The opposing managers have been schooling their charges carefully, teaching them several new plays and improving the old ones. Publicity managers have been working overtime for several days and the student body can expect the starting line-ups and full information before game time.

Rain or shine, the "Game of Games" will take place tomorrow at 2.30 p.m.

SKIRTS IN SPORTS

YESTERDAY'S swimming meet brought to the limelight a swimmer of talent who has already won fame for herself in other circles, namely Sheila Ritchie. This young mermaid proved to be quite a sensation by literally cleaning up in the meet. In the 100 yards she actually came in nearly a length ahead of her opponents, which proves her amazing speed. In the diving, she did not have much of a chance to show off her ability, because this was mainly a lowboard event, but though her performance was not outstanding she carried off the honours here too. Among other competitors who showed up in various events were Margaret Hale, a freshette, Betty Lysons, and Joyce Lewis. Owing to their strong entries, M.S.P.E. gained the highest aggregate with the added distinction of having broken a record.

WELL, the latest snowflurries seem to have frozen the tennis tournament to death, or at least into a coma. It is exactly the same state as it was about a week ago, with the doubles still unfinished. It might be called a hibernating sport, expected to reappear in the spring, but it probably will only come out and look at its shadow and then retire again for another long sleep. Anyway, if the worst should come to the worst, there is always indoor tennis to fall back on.

THE basketball practices are continuing regularly with a very full attendance so far. As yet no schedule for games has been announced, but it will be forthcoming very soon. This year there will not be any out of town trips, except the game out at MacDonald. The team will be at home to the other colleges and will welcome them with a championship team as usual. The stars of the team are already feeling the results of the practices and are showing this by their teamwork which was lacking so much at the beginning of the year, owing to a number of freshettes who turned out to try for the team.

Christ has promised to be with us all days so that we live no life unless our life is hidden in his. The Holy Mass is at once the symbol and the actuality of his presence; and small wonder that the hearing of Mass is a matter of obligation. Obligations are sometimes irksome; but when Love is the dictator the obligation becomes a privilege. What is chiefly urgent upon us is the obligation of entering the gates of Heaven, and it is the Sacrifice of the Mass that holds them open for us.—Rev. J. Kendal, S.J.

Senior Poloists Meet Mt. Royal Squad

Redmen Oppose Undeclared Y.M.H.A. Team Tonight

JUNIORS PRACTISE

STILL hopeful, despite their string of defeats, McGill senior poloists go into action tonight against the formidable Y. M. H. A. squad at the "Y" tank. It is notable that the Red poloists always put up their hardest fights against the "Y" boys, and it is hoped that tonight will be no exception. They have met twice before this season and the McGill team was turned back by scores of 6-4, 6-3, respectively, on those occasions.

Up to now the Y. M. H. A. aggregation has been undefeated, although tied twice. Tonight they have the additional advantage of playing in their home pool and if the Redmen come through with a win, they will certainly deserve it. There is an admission charge of 25 cents at Y. M. H. A. home games. The other game on the program is between the "Y" juniors and M. S. C.

Redmen Get Layoff

Following tonight's game the seniors will have a short respite from league competition as they do not play again until next Thursday. Like the juniors they will enter a period of intensive practice for the next game, so that by the time the intercollegiate matches come around the Redmen should be in fine form. A regular junior practice is scheduled for 5.30 tonight.

courts and even became independent of civic control over them. In London the opposite was the case. There too the guilds had their own laws in court, but they were still subsidiary to the civil and central. In Florence civic control was national control and this had to be overcome.

Gilds meanwhile were delving into politics. In London gilds advanced members as candidates for the office of alderman. They thought in this way to control municipal government as to obtain favourable arrangements for themselves in the foreign market. Having these representatives in local parliament gave great economic advantages.

The struggle for political control was long and bitter. By 1319 nearly all the aldermen were members of some craft gild. In this way were the gilds able to gain their ends. In Florence a similar struggle for political power was being waged but in this case the nobles formed the opposition.

Dog Leads Blind Student Everywhere

University Sophomore Employs Readers System To Study Class Assignments

Philadelphia, Penn. — Blind since the age of three, Paul W. Douglas, a sophomore in the University of Pittsburgh, has successfully graduated from the school for blind and succeeded in attaining a "B" standing in his freshman year courses. "Night," a coal black German shepherd dog, serves as Paul's eyes. Specially trained, she adheres to his signals. During class hours she sleeps, but as soon as the bell rings she wakes up and stands ready for his instructions. When they reach the steps she sits down, this being a signal to Mr. Douglas.

He has a special permit to ride on street cars with the dog. When given reading assignments he either employs the Braille system or has readers, using the former method when he can obtain books of that sort. In class he takes notes with a slate and stylus. At home he prepares his work on a typewriter, which he manipulates perfectly.

Handicapped as he may be, he is perfectly satisfied. He has but one ambition and it is the one which he can never obtain: He wants to see actually all the modern inventions, the developments of which he has followed closely in books.

Radio Influences Modern English

Los Angeles, Calif. — The radio and motion pictures are powerful modern influences making for uniformity in the English language. So states Harry M. Ayres in an interesting article entitled "England's English — And September Issue of Current History. America's" which appears in the English has always been a language of unusual variety. Certain forces, in addition to the more modern ones listed above, have reduced variety and contributed to the comparative uniformity of present English. Among these were: the spread of printing, the widening of educational opportunity, and the urge of social conformity.

The phonograph, the radio, and the cinema will keep the world aware of American practice in English speaking just as in the past the stage has spread knowledge of a certain type of English practice, states Mr. Ayres.

A strong force making for non-uniformity is the persistence of regional loyalties. These are exemplified in the speech of a Scotsman, a Virginian, a Bostonian, or an Oxford man. Such types rejoice in their distinction of a different dialect and are loathe to relinquish it.

Distinct habits of speech are also maintained by the various social levels and add to these specialized forms of speech are distrustful of all others.

The old habit of British critics was to infer that all American books were full of vulgar neologisms. On the other hand, the American attitude was characterized by carelessness, insensitiveness to standards and dislike of whatever snatched of superiority.

Only Hope In Difficulty
The only hope of ameliorating the difficulty, declares Mr. Ayres, lies in continually restating the problem in historical terms. For example: the word schedule is a genuine shibboleth — a war could be fought over it. The English will not change their pronunciation "shed," because they love it, the destiny of the empire hangs on it — and this despite the fact that it is not older than the 18th century.

The American pronunciation is supported by the Greek form of the word and the fact that it has a natural pronunciation with "sk"-like school and scheme. The fact of the matter is, the world was introduced from the French and was long pronounced and written "sedule."

In opposition to American, England prefers the Latin type of pronunciation. Doodle is "do syle," fertile, "fer tyle," and even missile, "mis syle." The British printing house rules differ from American in several well known particulars. The older form of spelling is preserved such as favour and centre, Programme and civilisation.

British Utterances
British utterance, says the author, has richer tonality, greater terseness, wider spread of pitch and speed, than American. We pronounce the word secretary, for example, like the gradual uncurling of a snake, whereas the English pronounce the word as rapidly as the hiss of the animal.

To Americans, English speech seems affected and a little ridiculous. And to the British, language as spoken by the American voice seems flat and uneventful. A retreat by both extremes to the mean would do no harm.

Unemployed Relief Agencies Outlined

and so new faces are always being seen at the shelters.

Illustrating his contentions by several anecdotes derived from personal experience the speaker showed what forms of discipline were expected from the unemployed; how the large numbers were handled with the greatest speed, what difficulties were met with the work and what was the attitude of the various groups of workless towards their situation and towards the question of relief. Lloyd Reynolds, president of the club was in the chair.

O'Neill's 'Mourning Becomes Electra'

Eugene O'Neill, who is today pretty generally recognized as America's foremost playwright, has been accused of choosing names or titles for his plays just to attract attention by their oddity. His extraordinary play, "Strange Interlude" kept the entire play-going world wondering what he meant by the title, and he never did give an understandable explanation. However, there cannot be any speculation regarding the appropriateness of the title of his latest, and undoubtedly his greatest dramatic work, "Mourning Becomes Electra," which will be presented at His Majesty's Theatre on Wednesday, November 16.

This title means exactly what it implies, namely that mourning becomes or looks well on Electra, and a still further justification of the title may be found in this name of the principal character, Electra, which is a Greek name and means "un-mated." O'Neill's heroine, if she may be called such, is "un-mated," and everybody who is familiar with the story or who sees the play will agree that it will be a mighty lucky thing for mankind if all Electras remain "un-mated."

But, to get back to the title, O'Neill was not even trying to be mystifying when he chose "Mourning Becomes Electra" as the general appellation to apply to the three plays grouped under this one name, but which separately are called "Homecoming," "The Hunted," and "The Haunted." These names also are said to be aptly chosen, as witnessing the play will reveal.

doubtless be given plenty of work. Farmer and Gordie Crutchfield are tied for scoring honours amongst the redmen, each having two points to his credit. Crutchfield banged in two goals last week while the Ste. Anne's flash chalked up one goal and one assist. Jack McGill and Hugh Farquharson also broke into the scoring, each registering an assist.

Little is known of the possibilities of the Irish aggregation, their team being but recently assembled. Randy Kerr is one of their main threats and along with Kelly will be watched carefully.

Vics Meet Canadiens

Vics and Canadiens take the ice in the finale, which will be Vics' first appearance this year. Doc Clements' speedy Frenchmen will have their hands full with Frank Carlin's boys, who are reported to be a very young but capable team.

Tonight's game is not a McGill home game and consequently those who want their way to the Forum will have to provide themselves with forty cents for the purchase of a general admission ticket or seventy-five cents if they wish to occupy a box seat. The officials who will handle both games are Billy Bell and Paul Noble.
